

Effect of bashang wetland functional recovery on the downstream city

WAN Xiao-hong

(Department of Water Environment, IWHR, Beijing 100038, China)

Abstract: The wetland plays a key role in urban construction of ecological civilization. It is an effective way which protection and restoration of wetland functions for the urban construction of ecological civilization. There were introductions about the function of Wetland, and analysis of the influence of urban construction of ecological civilization in Bashang wetland to the downstream city environment and social economy development. The results showed that restoration of Bashang wetland function, strengthen the consciousness of wetland protection, which was the foundation of ecology for the downstream city development and building a beautiful home.

Key word: Bashang wetland; wetland functions; urban construction of ecological civilization